

Basic, montage wooden photo frames take lead

Typical features

- Surface treatment: Varnish or paint may be used on releases made of wood to keep the material's natural look. MDF pieces can have wood veneer or paper stickers.

- Materials: High-end photo frames use pine, oak, cotton or Chinese walnut. MDF is more common in less expensive models.

- Size: The typical dimensions are 3.5x5, 4x6, 5x7 and 8x10in, although companies offer various sizes. Montage constructions are often large.

- Shape: Frames can be rectangular, round, square or heart-shaped. Montage models are also available.

- Rack & support: Plastic, MDF and wood are the material options. The first is the most widely adopted. Real wood can be found in high-end photo frames.

Price range (per piece)	Basic features
$0.50 to $1	Mostly MDF; surface covered with paper sticker; square or rectangular; <3in; plastic support, rack
$1.25 to $5	MDF or wood; natural, varnished with epoxy or veneered; various shapes; 3 to 5in; plastic, MDF support, rack
$5.25 to $10	Wood; natural or varnished; various shapes; glass glazing; >5in

Top trends

- Simple & montage constructions: Basic designs are still best-sellers, with rectangle, square and round the top shape choices. Multiframe pieces for photo montages are also popular.
- Handcarving & -painting: Suppliers of high-end models apply these techniques for differentiation and added value. The common patterns are flowers, animals and text.
- Environmental protection: Makers utilize formaldehyde-free MDF. "Green" varnishes and paint are likewise employed.
- Price forecast: Product quotes are expected to increase 10 to 15 percent in the next six months. Markups are mainly due to continuing inflation and the yuan's appreciation.
- Sales & export projection: China's wooden photo frames line is a mature and traditional industry with steady demand. Suppliers do not see rising costs affecting their ability to meet requests and anticipate sales and exports to remain stable.
